Solving Personal Lines Mysteries

Sherlock Holmes in the books by Arthur Conan says: "It is always dangerous to reason from insufficient data." "There is nothing more deceptive than an obvious fact." "Any truth is better than definite doubt." "I can discover facts, but I cannot change them."

Clues to determine the extent of insurance coverage include:

- Investigating how vehicle and home ownership and usage can affect eligibility, coverage and what amendatory endorsements are needed.
- Inspecting definitions and determining how they can clarify or confuse the issue of what property or liability coverage is actually provided.
- Exploring who is and who is not insured and endorsements that can be used to solve potential problems before they occur.
- Discovering how endorsements can be used to amend, extend or reduce coverage and avoid or resolve important coverage questions.
- Analyzing the differences between legal liability versus protection under the personal auto or homeowners policy - one of the biggest mysteries of all!
- Supporting your position with detailed coverage analysis.
